WHO

Who does the problem affect

The issue arises for those who are impaired and find it challenging to deliver the appropriate information.

WHAT

what is the issue?

Today, it has become quite difficult for impaired persons to speak in an emergency. Therefore, we need to construct a system that translate all the hand signals into meaningful data.

WHERE

Where does the issue occur

The problem mostly arises when people with disabilities find it challenging to speak in public places. Therefore, in order to effectively transmit messages, we need a computer that is both powerful and encrypted.

WHY

why is important to fix the problem

The disabled will be able to communicate properly and lead independent lives and it also will assist the developers in improving the resources and optimising them for use in the future.
